

SOME THINGS THAT NEVER WERE SEEN BEFORE

PANGLE "PREPPING" SOME GOOD HORSES

Fireside As Expected to Create Furor at Marlboro Race Meet Next Week.

The string John Pangle, of Washington, is readying up for the Marlboro meeting, June 3 to 13, inclusive, was recruited from the stable of Richard T. Wilson, the president of the Saratoga Association, of New York, and one of the horses—Fire—was the medium of a killing at Laurel last fall. Fire is a strapping three-year-old by Star Shoot, out of Homebody. He cost Mr. Wilson $5,000 as a yearling, and although he proved something of a disappointment in that he did not race as a two-year-old to the form a $5,000 colt should have shown, that killing at Laurel helped a bit.

Fire came into the possession of Pangle at Pimlico, and he is training satisfactorily. He is no great shakes or speed, but he is big boned and big framed, and he gallops like a distance runner. It is for the distance races of the southern Maryland meeting that Pangle will point him, and the veteran trainer expects to win the colt out before the fateful thirteenth. Pangle had some success with jumpers when he trained for David Dunlop, of Petersburg, a couple of seasons back, and it is within the bounds of possibility that he may make a leaper of Fire. Already the son of Star Shoot and Homebody has had a bit of schooling. Thomas Healey had him through the field at Pimlico last fall, and at Belmont Park in the winter. He has jumped the Belmont Park course safely, and any green horse which does that has better than merely a fair chance of success in the steeplechase field. The Belmont Park course is the toughest in the country.

Another three-year-old secured by Pangle from the Wilson stable was the maiden Dugara, twice the measure of a plunge during the recent Pimlico meeting, and twice a disappointment. But Dugara's failures can hardly be charged against him. Old Man McCabe, generally a dependable stocky, was asleep at the switch in pure instance, and Wolf failed in another.

There is another maiden of the three-year-old class in the Pangle string, called Milky Way, son of Star Shoot and Olga Netherlands, with which the Washington turfman is sure to win a race, but Milky Way is hardly as promising as Dugara and Fire.

Maryland Odd Fellows Will Hold Marathon

Long distance runners of this section are to have an opportunity to compete on July 4, when a modified marathon will be run from Washington to Hyattsville, Md. The distance is ten miles, the course extending from a point in Pennsylvania avenue, in front of the Munsey Building, to the baseball field in Zantlinger's Park, Hyattsville. This run is a part of the Odd Fellows celebration, which is to be held in Hyattsville on Independence Day, and is being promoted under its auspices.

Captain O. A. Greger has obtained a sanction for the July modified marathon, from the Amateur Athletic Union, and members of that organization only will be allowed to compete. The entrance fee is 50 cents, and blanks may be obtained from Captain Greger. The sporting editor of The Times, or from Spalding's. An attractive array of prizes, headed by a silver loving cup, donated by The Times, will be awarded to the winners. Gold, silver, and bronze medals are included in the prize list.

Will Show Game.

Beginning tomorrow and continuing throughout the trip around the circuit of the National, the Nokes scoreboards will show every game, at the Gayety Theater.

WASHINGTON CANOE CLUB SUMMER PLANS

By KIRK C. MILLER.

Reginald Rutherford, of the Washington Canoe Club, has just completed one of the fullest programs for a summer's activity for that organization that has ever been compiled for any canoeing and boating club of the city. Beginning next Saturday, when nearly every owner of a canoe belonging to the Washington club will be entered in one of the events of the Inter-Club Association, which holds its annual event on the Broadwater, and continuing until August 15, members of the club which Rutherford heads, will enjoy an active summer on the water.

One club regatta has already been staged, that of last Saturday being a preliminary event to the lengthy program which has been arranged. This was in the nature of trial races of various kinds, to obtain a line on the material likely to show well in the event Memorial Day on the Broadwater of the Potomac. Indications point to the Washington club sending the largest entry of any league of canoeists in the city to the May 30 regatta, and this boasts the chances of one in its ranks to win the Times Trophy, which is to be awarded to the individual winning the greatest number of contests.

Next on the menu of the Washington club is an open swimming meet, to be held off its float on June 30. This sport is closely affiliated with canoeing, and the entries for the swimming meet will be almost identical with that of the canoe regatta. Another swimming competition is the first of two dual meets with the Maryland Swimming Club of Baltimore, to be held June 11. The Washington Canoe Club stages another open regatta for its membership on July 11.

The swimming classic of the season in this section falls on August 8, when the long-distance race for the championship of the District will be held. Being an annual competition, this swim will attract candidates from every organization of the city, indoors and outdoors, and the Nautilus Club of the Y. M. C. A. is expected to figure as one of the dangerous teams. From Chain Bridge to Aqueduct Bridge, a distance of three miles, the course will be in the channel of the Potomac and on that afternoon fully fifty swimmers are expected to try for honors. Each candidate is allowed to be followed by a timer or checker, who may be in a canoe and ready to give aid in case the competitor should meet with a mishap.

The second dual regatta with the Maryland Swimming Club occurs on August 15, this meet to be held in Baltimore and will decide the titles between Washington and Baltimore. One of the regatta, which is the novel event of the season. This meet, for its peculiar brand of competition, usually attracts more spectators to the banks of the Potomac than any other canoe or boating race. A third club regatta is booked for September 15.

The return of Joe Wood, the Red Sox star fliker, was marked with a victory over the Napslanders. Now watch those Red Sox.

A severe thunderstorm stopped the Athletics from dropping another game to those hard-fighting Brownies yesterday. The Mackmen are cracking.

"Big Six" Mathewson was right in his glory yesterday, and the Giants hung up a victory over the Cubs. With Matty performing in his usual fashion, the Giants always carry the odds.

Eight pinch-hitters delivered the goods yesterday in the big leagues, while only five fell down. This is a mighty record for the day, and the odds against the pinch-hitter try his wits against the twirlers.

"Buck" Herzog has forced his Cincinnati Reds to fight for everything in every game, and as a result, the Rhinelanders are sailing along in third place. With the Reds in the first division, another triumph is marked up for a former Giant—Herzog.

If the Griffins can produce on the road as good ball as they have in the past, when they have usually won more than half of their games, they will have an excellent chance of returning home next month safely interested in first place. That's what they'll try for, too.

Today the final battle with the Junglers is scheduled for the Capital. Tomorrow they will open a series with the Red Sox in Boston. A postponed game is also on the cards for Fenway Park on this trip, making five contests to be played with the Carrigan crew. In the present condition of the campaign these games are of the greatest importance.

From Boston the Griffins go to New York for three days and then jump to St. Louis for a swing through the West. Four games in St. Louis, Chicago, and Cleveland, with five in Detroit will be the work cut out for the Griffins on their first invasion of the frontier. With a postponed game in Boston and another in New York, the leaders will have twenty-six games on foreign fields before they once more see the dome of the Capitol.

Red Sox Buy Cooper.
NEW YORK, May 28.—Gus Cooper, the tall right-handed twirler purchased by the Yankees last fall from Petersburg of the Virginia League, has been sold by Frank Chance to the Boston Red Sox. He was formerly star athlete of the United States Navy, and for a couple of seasons held the middleweight boxing title of the Atlantic squadron.

KOMMERS EXPECTED TO BE SUSPENDED

BALTIMORE, Md., May 28.—Fred Kommer, the St. Louis Federal League outfielder, who kicked Empire Man-nassau yesterday during a mix-up between the official and the St. Louis players, is likely to be suspended for a long term by President Gilmore, who appreciates the evil effect the assault will have on the fortunes of the new league. Word is expected today from Gilmore to whom Mannassau sent a long report last night, detailing the whole affair.

Baltimore is thoroughly worked up over the savage attack upon the umpire. The fans poured down upon the field, and would have treated Kommer harshly but for the quick work of Harry Swain, the Terrapins' big first baseman, who picked up Kommer and tossed him upon the players' coop just in time to escape the rush of the fans. Umpire Mannassau called the game on account of darkness after a twenty-minute wait to allow a thunder storm to pass. Kommer insisted that it was light enough to play. Boucher and Bridwell were with him rushing upon the official, but Kommer was the only one to assault him.
